Peter Frampton remains one of the most celebrated artists in rock ‘n’ roll history. At age 16, he was lead singer and guitarist for the British pop-rock group, The Herd, and two years later, he co-founded one of the first supergroups, seminal rock act Humble Pie. In his extensive music career spanning five decades, he has collaborated with such legendary artists as George Harrison, Harry Nilsson, David Bowie, Jerry Lee Lewis, Ringo Starr, and John Entwistle, among many others. His fifth solo album, Frampton Comes Alive!, was released 40 years ago and remains one of the top-selling live records to this day.

Frampton’s latest album, Acoustic Classics, was released in February 2016 and it features familiar hits such as “Baby, I Love Your Way,” “Lines on My Face,” “Do You Feel Like I Do,” and “Show Me The Way.” The album also highlights a new song, “All Down to Me,” which was co-written by Gordon Kennedy, the co-producer of Frampton’s Grammy Award®–winning album, Fingerprints. In promotion of this most recent album, Frampton was recently featured in NPR Music’s Tiny Desk Concert series: http://n.pr/1WSJeRk.
Frampton continues to tour the nation with his in-demand shows, Frampton’s Guitar Circus and Peter Frampton Raw, An Acoustic Tour.
