Multidisciplinary and dance-driven work addresses gun violence in America

October 27–30, 2016
In the Kennedy Center Eisenhower Theater

(WASHINGTON)—The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, in association with The Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, presents the East Coast premiere of Debbie Allen’s Freeze Frame in the Kennedy Center Eisenhower Theater in five shows, October 27–30, 2016. Written, directed, and choreographed by the three-time Emmy Award-winner, Freeze Frame...Stop the Madness is a fusion of dance, music, film, and theater that takes audiences on a journey through some of Los Angeles’s toughest streets where gangs, poverty, violence, and drugs are an everyday reality. With original music by Stevie Wonder, James Ingram, Ricky Minor, Arturo Sandoval, and Thump, the dance-driven work addresses the conversation about gun violence in America, the call for social progress, and the value of human life. The themes of courage and justice reflected in Freeze Frame are two ideals frequently ascribed to President John F. Kennedy, and are among five ideals the Kennedy Center will explore during JFKC: A Centennial Celebration of John F. Kennedy. The yearlong programming initiative showcases breakthrough works, like Freeze Frame, that embody the spirit of President Kennedy’s vision for the arts in America inspiring conversation around and initiating social change.

“It’s impossible to be an artist and not do something that reflects the issues, the pain, and examine possible solutions to the senseless violence and loss of innocent lives we are experiencing

“every day,” said Debbie Allen. “Freeze Frame is a lens through which a balanced conversation can be experienced and a real call to action will be heard.”

Originally commissioned by the Brisbane Arts Festival in Australia, Freeze Frame features a dynamic mix of street-tough characters sharing their stories through a series of high-powered scenes of dance, song, and drama. More than 20 Debbie Allen Dance Academy protégés and professional guest artists appear together onstage for explosive “break the floor” moves propelled by an original score. The cast of talented performers is comprised of a mix of seasoned professionals including three-time Emmy Award winner, Tony®–nominated, and Drama Desk winner Debbie Allen; Tony Award® winner Clinton Derricks; Broadway’s Vivian Nixon (Hot Feet, Memphis, Women on the Verge); So You Think You Can Dance finalist and all-star William Wingfield; up-and-coming internationally acclaimed vocalist Matthew Johnson; DADA alumni, choreographer for Mariah Carey, The Black Eyed Peas, and Founder of I am Compton, an initiative to tutor and offer performing arts education to the young Compton community, Dion Watson; and past and present students from the Debbie Allen Dance Academy. Through the thought-provoking and passionate performances of Freeze Frame, audiences will see the indescribable story of how art, dance, music, and hope are able to transform lives.

Additional cast members to be announced at a later date.

About Debbie Allen
